

A 2012 GOURMET TOUR OF VIETNAM

We offer our travelers an exceptional opportunity to sample the complex and varied food and drink of Vietnam. The tour is offered on your dates from January through May or October through December. We don't recommend travel during the wet season (June through September).

This tour program is available for individuals, small groups or families. The cost depends on the number of travelers, whether you want Superior class hotels or Deluxe class hotels, and whether you want us to include Trans-Pacific flights. Some of our clients want to utilize their frequent flier points.

Comparatively low in fat and high in carbohydrate, the Vietnamese diet is varied, nutritious and distinctive. The cuisine of Vietnam today is based on a long history and tradition heavily reliant on cooking over fire by boiling, steaming, barbecuing and frying. There is very little roasting. Baking was introduced by the French in the 19th century and wonderful baked goods are a reminder of French culinary traditions introduced into the Vietnamese culture.

Many Vietnamese meals utilize bowls, ceramic spoons and chop sticks. Foods are accompanied by a variety of sauces, dips and salads. Rice or noodles are featured in almost every Vietnamese meal. Prime ingredients include beef, pork, veal, chicken, duck, rabbit, and a variety of fresh water fish and seafoods. Lobster, crab and scallops are available. Shrimp farms are numerous along the South China Sea coast. Vietnamese shrimp are exported and can be found on the menus of many fine American restaurants including Legal Seafoods. In some regions of Vietnam more exotic dishes may include venison, wild boar, frog legs or alligator.

Fruits and vegetables are bountiful in Southeast Asia and Vietnamese cooks utilize tomatoes, lemon grass, asparagus, eggplant, cucumbers, cabbages, corn, potatoes, cauliflower, green beans, mushrooms. Fruits include banana, orange, guava, star fruit, breadfruit, dragon fruit, pineapple, melon, coconut, and custard apples.

There are a number of "signature" Vietnamese dishes, most with regional variation. Pho is a noodle soup that is a breakfast standard, but the noodles are different in Hanoi, Hue and Saigon. Spring rolls that consist of pork or other ingredient wrapped in rice paper and served with lettuce are found throughout Vietnam, but with an astounding variety of presentations.

Vietnam is now one of world's largest exporters of coffee. There is also a growing wine industry complimenting quality imports. Regional beers compete with international brands brewed in Vietnam including Heineken and Fosters. Coke and Pepsi are widely available, as is pure bottled water.

Our Gourmet Tour of Vietnam will introduce you to the ingredients, recipes and traditions of Vietnamese cuisine. You will learn side-by-side from skilled Vietnamese cooks and sample a variety of foods in a range of settings from street vendors to the finest restaurants.

Select the month and approximate date that you want to start your tour and send us your Reservation Application. We will get the "ball rolling" and contact you to confirm your travel dates. We can fly you to and from Vietnam or you can make your own Trans-Pacific flight arrangements. Travel with your spouse, a friend, relative or a larger group of your buddies. The more travelers who accompany you, the better price we can offer for you and your companions. Don't let this opportunity pass you by. Flights and hotels fill up months in advance, so act now to insure your tour!

Tour Prices are based on a minimum number of tour participants as shown in the Reservation Application, and on tariffs and rates (currency & exchange) known at the time of printing; prices are subject to adjustment without notice in event of changes to such rates prior to departure.

Airfares are subject to change without notice. Coach-class airfares are often non-refundable and/or subject to cancellation fees. Trip Cancellation Insurance is strongly recommended.

Hotels: Unless otherwise stated, all tour prices are based on two persons sharing a twin/double room in a Superior Class hotel. Deluxe hotels are available at additional cost as indicated. Applicable single supplements are indicated for those wishing single room accommodations. Single rooms are limited in quantity and are sometimes not of the same size or quality as twin/double rooms. We do not recommend triple rooms as they tend to be very crowded; in most cases, triple rooms are a twin room to which a cot has been added. There is no reduction in tour cost for triple rooms. If you wish to share a room and do not have a roommate, we will place you in a twin/double room with the next same-sex participant to register for the tour who also requests to share a room.
