

I CORPS VIETNAM TOUR

We offer our travelers an opportunity to tour areas in modern central Vietnam once called I Corps. The tour is offered on your dates from January through May or October through December. We don't recommend travel during the wet season (June through September).

This tour program is available for individuals, small groups or families. The cost depends on the number of travelers, whether you want Superior class hotels or Deluxe class hotels, and whether you want us to include Trans-Pacific flights. Some of our clients want to utilize their frequent flier points.

For a decade in the mid-20th century, the central region of Vietnam, identified as I Corps by the US military, was a battleground from the beaches along the South China Sea to the rugged mountains bordering Laos. Americans serving in the US Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force fought communist forces on the land, on the waterways and in the air above this volatile region.

The echoes of the guns are long gone now and the people have lived without armed conflict for more than three decades. For half that time the Vietnamese struggled to survive under the misguided policies of economic Marxism. The fall of the Iron Curtain in Europe had ripple effects in Asia and the Vietnamese government, that remains under the control of the communist party, turned away from an economic model ill suited for Vietnam and embraced capitalism. Since that time, the country has thrived and the lives of the people have improved significantly. The Ford Motor Company assembly plant outside of Hanoi and the Nike shoe factory outside of Saigon are probably not what Ho Chi Minh and his followers had in mind. But those ventures and others have turned around the lives of millions of Vietnamese.

Return to I Corps today and see what has changed and what remains the same. Get reacquainted with the Vietnamese people and experience hospitality, culture and cuisine that were not exactly hallmarks of your first "tour" to I Corps.

Your tour begins in Hanoi. Here in a city that was once an enemy capital, you will be surprised by the warm welcome that awaits American visitors. You have an opportunity to tour Hanoi historic and cultural sites before you move onto I Corps.

A USMC Vet on Highway #9

You fly to Phu Bai and check into a modern hotel in Hue. From there you will venture forth to tour historic sites along Highway #1, the infamous "Street Without Joy," to Dong Ha and then out Highway #9 all the way to the site of Lang Vei Special Forces Camp overlooking the Laotian border. You'll also visit Khe Sanh and Camp Carroll. On another day you will venture into the A Shau Valley nearby the "Hamburger Hill" battlefield of 1970.

The Citadel

You will also have an opportunity to see sites around Hue including the world famous Citadel. The Vietnamese have been carefully and skillfully rebuilding and restoring the building in this moated imperial city that were largely destroyed during the 1968 Tet Offensive.

Then you drive along the coast of the South China Sea, over the Hai Van Pass and into DaNang, once the logistical and command center of US military activities for I Corps. You will stay in the picturesque fishing town of Hoi An and explore sites in the region from there. Your final destination in this part of the tour is Quy Nhon. Then you fly from Phu Cat, the former USAF base, to Saigon (officially "Ho Chi Minh City," with few exceptions, everyone still calls it Saigon.)

In Saigon you will have a full day to tour the city and its many fascinating sites. After two weeks, you will be headed home to the USA with a fresh view of Vietnam and the Vietnamese people.

Select the month and approximate date that you want to start your tour and send us your Reservation Application. We will get the "ball rolling" and contact you to confirm your travel dates. We can fly you to and from Vietnam or you can make your own Trans-Pacific flight arrangements. Travel with your spouse, a friend, relative or a larger group of your buddies. The more travelers who accompany you, the better price we can offer for you and your companions. Don't let this opportunity pass you by. Flights and hotels fill up months in advance, so act now to insure your tour!

On the grounds we see a plaque honoring the Soldiers and Marines who died defending the Embassy on 31 January 1968. This is the only monument honoring US forces in Vietnam today. (Note: subject to Consulate staff schedule). Then we visit the Colonial Post Office, Notre Dame Cathedral, Reunification Hall (former Presidential Palace), War Remnants Museum and a picturesque temple in the Cholon district of Saigon. After lunch at the Rex Hotel Rooftop Restaurant, we have free time for shopping at the nearby Ben Thanh Market, in the shops on Nguyen Hue Boulevard or in the upscale shops along Dong Khoi Street (former Tu Do Street).
